

ABSTRACT

[0030] The present invention provides a label having an adhesive surface operable to releasably adhere the label to a substrate surface under extreme conditions. The label further includes an adhesive free tab that provides an integral means for lifting the releasable label from the surface to which it is adhered. The tab section is specially configured so as to resist tearing of the label when being removed.

09912755-072401